"The televised Quebec leaders debate touched on subjects and nuances that must be considered of great concern to English and minority Quebecers," according to AffiliationQuebec Leader, Allen Nutik.

"Whether it was the issue of PQ sovereignty, ADQ autonomy, or Liberal transfer of federal powers to Quebec by Ottawa-Quebec entente, the debate centered on the recognition of the 'Quebecois Nation', and the further advancement of the Quebecois enterprise," says Nutik.

"It is patently clear," offers Nutik, "that the one million of us as a minority in Quebec are not one bit on the radar screen of Quebecois concern."

"The Quebec liberals have already counted our taken for granted Anglo and minority votes, and we were not even once mentioned or even considered as part of the election debate, or the Quebec landscape."

"We are the opaque one million," scoffs Nutik, "tasked with paying high taxes in order to receive little recognition and reduced services."

The debate, held only in Quebec's official language, says the AffiliationQuebec leader, "Must serve as a clear warning to Quebec's Anglophones and other minorities, that the Quebec policy of never admitted, but state sponsored discrimination will remain firmly in place, no matter who wins the the election on December 08.

Nutik continued, "Failure to organize and to be fully prepared to present a slate of qualified candidates in all ridings with significant Anglophone, Allophone, and minority constituencies, will be the eventual death knell for the English speaking communities in Quebec.

Nutik was emphatic, "Sovereignty is definitely not on the back burner for the Parti Quebecois, and we can clearly expect no concessions from the strongly nationalist leaning Charest Liberal Party."

"How can one million people and their denied rights to language, signs, education, and access, be so invisible?" asks Nutik. "Never say you were not warned!"

AffiliationQuebec is an official political party formed to represent the full rights and interests of loyal Canadians living in the Province of Quebec.
